- A consultation with a GP costs around 30 €, part of which is reimbursed by student Social Security.
- A consultation with a specialist costs between 30 and 90 €, part of which can be reimbursed.

Generally, in France, you have to make an appointment to see a doctor. Usually, you have to wait a few days to have an appointment with a general practitioner, sometimes several months for a specialist. But some doctors consult without an appointment (you must check beforehand).

Some medicines can be purchased directly at the pharmacy and others are only available on prescription.

A prescription is given by a doctor, and most of the time you will be reimbursed for the drugs (not all drugs are reimbursed or not fully reimbursed).

Paracetamol is available without prescription (for pain-relief or fever).

Dos & Donts

Greetings: when you enter a shop/coffee/bus, always greet people with 'Bonjour' or 'Bonsoir' (after 6pm). Say 'au revoir' (goodbye) when leaving. Don't forget to use 's'il vous plait' (please) and 'merci' (thank you). This applies to administrative emails as well.

To greet someone, you can do 'la bise'.

When you are invited, always bring something: flowers, chocolate or wine are common gifts.

Compost your ticket each time you get on the tram or bus.

Respect your neighborhood from 10 p.m.

Collect dog droppings from your pet or you will be fined.

Sort your waste in the various containers provided for this purpose.

When speaking French, do not use « tu » but « vous » instead, until the person offers to switch. It is more formal and respectful.

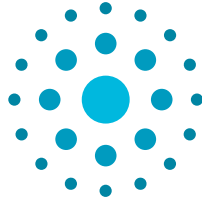

Do not start your meal before everyone gets their food – in France, eating is a serious matter.

Being noisy when eating or drinking is considered rude.

Tips are not mandatory, but you can leave some change if you were satisfied with the service.

Don't be disappointed if social relationships take longer to develop than expected. The French will not invite you to their homes right away; building a network is a bit more difficult but it pays to be patient: good things take time!

It is forbidden to walk around the city topless.
